FORENSIC CROSS-REFERENCES

1. The Archive's Depth Exceeded Every Institutional Model

25+ agencies modelled Dr. McLean as a manageable, suppressible individual. Not one agency modelled the 2,304-exhibit blockchain-sealed outcome. The depth of the archive exceeded every institutional predictive framework.

2. The Psychiatric System Could Not Hold the Testimony

14 involuntary hospitalisations attempted to contain the testimony within a clinical framework. The testimony continued to be assembled across and despite every admission. The clinical container was not deep enough.

3. The Financial Destruction Could Not Hold the Archive

$18M–$32.9M in documented financial destruction was insufficient to prevent the construction of the archive. The financial suppression model failed. The archive was built in poverty.

4. The Death Threat Could Not Hold the Documentation

An active death threat with a $10M Bitcoin bounty was insufficient to prevent the archive from reaching Wyong Local Court on 14 May 2026. The archive was submitted to the ICC while the threat was active.

5. The Surveillance Could Not Hold the Witness

206MB of audio collected within the support relationship. An SAS operative placed inside the care network. ASIO connections. None of it held the witness. The witness documented the surveillance instead.

6. The Depth That Could Not Be Held Is Now Globally Distributed

484,000+ downloads. Six continents. The ICC. The UNHCR. The depth is no longer in one place. It is in 484,000 places. The institutional container that could not hold it no longer exists. The depth is everywhere.
