FORENSIC CROSS-REFERENCES

1. The Police Officer Relieved of Duty — Institutional Nervousness at Ground Level

The NSW Police officer who refused to issue Dr. McLean an incident number for the April 15, 2026 death threat was subsequently relieved of duty. This institutional self-correction is documented nervousness.

2. Documented Police Question: "Is He Ready to Challenge Bill Shorten?"

NSW Police asked whether Dr. McLean was mentally ready to challenge Bill Shorten in court. Police do not normally assess a complainant's readiness to challenge a named politician. The question documents institutional nervousness about the named politician.

3. Zero Defamation Proceedings — The Nervousness of Non-Action

The institutions that labelled Dr. McLean delusional have not filed a single defamation proceeding across 484,000+ downloads that contain those labels in context. This is not calm confidence. This is documented institutional paralysis.

4. The Referral Loop — Nervousness in Institutional Architecture

When every agency refers the complaint to the agency being complained about, the institutional nervousness becomes structural. The referral loop is designed by nervous institutions to ensure the complaint never lands on a document that triggers accountability.

5. The Mental Health Weaponisation Strategy — Nervousness About a Fair Fight

The decision to weaponise Dr. McLean's mental health history as a legal defence strategy — documented through a police source — reveals institutional nervousness about what would happen if the archive were evaluated on its evidentiary merits.

6. The Nervousness IS the Evidence

Every nervous act — the non-response, the referral loop, the withheld incident number, the mental health weaponisation plan, the defamation non-action — is a primary-source exhibit in the archive. The nervousness of the wrong people is the proof that the right things are documented.
